Vepco To Sell Securities

Virginia Electric and Power Company announced plans to sell between $40 - $70 million of common stock.

Proceeds from the offerings during the first half of 1972 to help finance an estimated $775 construction budget in the range of $475 million needed to provide new facilities to meet growing customer demand.

On February 17, the company plans to offer 945,000 shares of preferred stock in a negotiated transaction with Morgan Stanley, Kidder, Peabody & Co. Smith Incorporated as the managing underwriter. The sale will consist of 450,000 shares at $100 per value.

On May 31, Vepco plans to offer approximately $100 - $150 million of first mortgage bonds in a competitive bidding sale, with Chemical Manhattan Plaza in New York.

Vepco's 1972 construction budget amounts to over $475 million each working day, and is part of a five - year $3.5 billion construction program requiring expenditures of $2 billion, of this amount approximately $1.4 billion must be raised through the sale of new securities.

During 1971, Vepco sold four issues of securities to investors, in part, additional funds needed for the large construction program.

In March, $50 million of first mortgage bonds and 400,000 shares of preferred stock were issued; in September, $50 million of first mortgage bonds and 4,000,000 shares of common stock were sold.

In addition, the company also negotiated the sale and lease-back of 26 transformers, serving $45.2 million from the sale.

Announces Reduction In Interest On Loans

Mr. J. F. Glenn, of the Federal Land Bank Association of Farmville stated today that, effective January 1, the interest rate on all new Land Bank loans under the variable rate plan will be reduced to 7 1/2%. He also stated that, effective February 16, 1972, interest will be set-tured and billed at 7 1/2% on loans initially written at rates above 7 1/2%. Mr. Glenn stressed that this move of lining at lower rates conforms to the long planning practice of charging no more than necessary to meet normal operating costs and reserve requirements.

In addition, Mr. Glenn points out that stockholders having loans at interest rates below the current new loan rate will be permitted one additional loan without being required to refinance the existing loan. This new policy can be explained in detail by your local Farm Credit representative. The local Farm Credit office in this area is located at Farmville, Va. and is served by Mr. J.F. Glenn Mr. Forrest Osborne, and Mr. K. M. Beasley, Jr.

The Federal Land Bank of Baltimore has twenty-nine local associations throughout a five state area and includes Puerto Rico. These associations are providing depending long-term real estate funds to over 14,-000 farmers. This represents nearly $348,000,000. There are 11 other such banks located in major agricultural areas throughout the United States and although the banks are chartered by Congress and called Federal Land Banks, these institutions use no government funds either for lending or for their operation. They are owned and controlled by their member associations, and they get their funds to lend through the sale of bonds to private investors.

Meaningful Education For Each Student

Each student is an individual of dignity and worth and learns in a variety of ways. Five-year-olds students in Mrs. McCraw's ninth grade English class are simultaneously collecting information about aspects of Indian culture that interest them.

Eight students at the left are using our recently purchased Acoustic-Center and Tablettes. The Acoustic-Center enables eight students to use the record player at one time without disturbing fellow students.

Three other learning centers like the one in the picture to the right are being utilized. Groups of students are viewing films through viewmasters, taking notes, and sharing ideas.

Other students within the room are collecting information independently from books, magazines, pamphlets and encyclopedias. As the students complete one activity, they move to another area.

By-Pass & Rt. 24 Projects In 10-Year Proposal

The Appomattox County road projects are included in a proposed primary and urban construction projects program for the Lynchburg District, Dept. of Highways covering the next ten years, 1972-73 through 1981-82.

One project is the Route 460 by-pass of the town of Appomattox. The other is a widening and reconstruction of section of Rt. 24 between Mount Rush and Appomatox.

The listings are a supplement to a study for the Virginia Advisory Legislative Council and are those envisioned as essential to the highway improvement program being proposed by the Dept. of Highways.

Based on presently available traffic and engineering information, the listing is intended as a fiscal and planning guide for the development of specific work projects. The overall program will be refined and broken into yearly construction increments on a priority basis.

TheRoute 460 By-pass is listed as a four-land facility on new location with $5,300,000 listed as the amount financed, 73-82.

The Mt. Rush - Appomatox project on Route 24 has been estimated at $2,000,000 in the proposed listing.

Sod Can't Be It Alone

Robert E. McClenny, Jr. District Conservationist

Past year was an excellent good growing season for grass. There are many areas that have barren spots and stands. Pastures that did improve this past year still won't adequately reseed until treated.

Like fences need inspection and maintenance to keep them in place, grassland needs inspection and maintenance. Wet years like this past year demand more water down ways and erosion hazards are greatly increased. Any areas that place in your watershed in and reseed the spots. Such waterways not only carry excess water from the but also are used for livestock. Both uses are on the sod. This requires maintenance if the draw is sodded and ready for the season.

Poor sod waterways show signs of silting, this means that are losing too much soil from the adjacent cultivated Change your row layout order to decrease the grade This will decrease soil, and fertilizer losses. grazing, low fertility and a history of several dry caused out some of the weed grasses in our pastures. These pastures can be re-ded by lightly disking ough to prepare a seedbed, and enough to destroy the sod. A few farmers used a grain drill without seeded preparation with good success.

Soil must be moist for the drill to cut deep enough to cover the seed.

Where undesirable plants make up a good portion of the stand, they should have to be plowed or disked thoroughly to destroy plant competition. Fields with severe weed problems should be fall seeded to reduce the competition. Also, land badly packed by livestock does better when a good seedbed is prepared. Steep land would have to be renovated in strips on the contour to reduce erosion. A little small grain in the seed mixture helps reduce erosion.

Pasture, hayland and waterways need to be soil tested every couple of years and limed and fertilized as needed. Of course, we must have a stand of improved grasses or legumes to benefit from fertilization. Most native plants will not increase in production enough to pay for the fertilizer.

As soon as the soil is dry enough to mix, soil samples should be taken to get ahead of the spring rush at the Blacksburg testing lab. If wet conditions prevail, soil can be collected from the field, dried in the house, crushed and mixed to get a sample.

Eroded areas or problem spots need about twice as much fertilizer and seed as good soil.

It is essential that a new stand is grazed sparingly the first year.

ROAD STUDY IS COMPLETED

Resident engineer Charles Pittman recently presented to Appomattox supervisors the traffic tabulation for secondary roads of Appomattox County based on counts taken in June and July, 1971.

In addition, Pittman notified supervisors that changes would probably have to be made in the county's subdivision ordinance so that developers can be aware of road and street specifications necessary before such roads and streets can be taken over for maintenance by the Va. Dept. of Highways.

As space permits, the Times-Virginian will publish the secondary road traffic counts. As regulations now stand, at least 50 cars or more per day on a given road must be recorded before the road is eligible for hard surfacing.

8½ Million To Be Spent On Roads

Proposed distribution to the secondary road system of Appomattox county over the next ten years totals $8,580,000, according to a preliminary projects listing released to Appomattox county supervisors. The report is prepared by the Va. Dept. of Highways for the Va. Advisory Legislative Council.

The proposed spending program envisions a steady increase in amount spent for secondary roads. The 1971-72 budget calls for $575,000. An increase of more than $100,000 shows a proposed budget for 1972-73 of $692,000. For 1973-74, $725,000; 1974 -75, $759,-000; 1975-76, $795,000; 1976-77, $838,000; 1977-78, $870,-000; 1978-79, $911,000; 1979-80, $954,000; 1980-81, $998,-000; 1981-82, $1,044,000.
